

Belvedere of the Pic de l'Aigle (Eagle's peak)

Haut-Jura Grandvaux

Attribution : Le belvédère du Pic de l'Aigle (PNRHJ - F. Jeanparis)

On the windy top of the Pic de l'Aigle, the landscape is yours to admire. To the west, the two main plateaus that mark the start of the Jura's relief stretch out before you. The rocky ledge where the Pic de l'Aigle culminates and the lake region mark a break with the relief's third plateau which is located to the east and gives way to the folded structures of the Jura's high valleys.

Recommendations: Take care, in the winter the ascent to the Pic de l'Aigle can be slippery due to ice.

Please keep your dog on a lead if you have one.

Wild flowers are beautiful, they may be rare and protected and often wilt quickly.

Do not pick them! They will delight the next hikers.

In case of forest works (felling, skidding, etc.), for your safety, know when to stop and turn around.

Road access: 10 km northwest of Saint-Laurent-en-Grandvaux, La Chaux-du-Dombief is accessible via the D 678.

Suggested parking: Pic de l'Aigle parking lot

Departure point: Pic de l'Aigle parking lot
