Description

Come and stay in Les P'tits Belets, a gîte having been built within an old 18th century comtois farm. Michel, the owner, adopted a rigorous eco-friendly approach when renovating his gîte (local and/or natural materials, solar panels, rainwater recovery system, etc.). You will also appreciate how he has highlighted local craftsmanship (wooden shingle facade and restoration of the strong attic).

Michel has strived to maintain biodiversity around the gîte. Thanks to birdhouses and feeders, you will enjoy the show put on by tits and other greenfinches, goldfinches, jays or Eurasian nuthatches. In summer, the colourful dragonflies swarm the river, offering a feast for the eyes!

The gîte is at the foot of a cross-country ski slope, close to Lamoura for alpine skiing and a departure point for many summer hikes. Your host knows the area well and will help you discover the High Jura's natural and cultural heritage.
